Description

LLANITO PERERA

The route begins beside the Church of Nuestra Señora del Carmen, in Llanito Perera, from where we head towards Camino Pino Valois. As we climb, we leave the residential areas behind and enter a mid-altitude landscape of cultivated land and vegetation typical of the more humid areas.

The route takes us to Pino Valois, an impressive Canary Island pine standing around 30 metres tall and measuring 760 cm in circumference, considered the oldest pine tree in Icod de los Vinos. Its name recalls Bernardo Valois, an Irish merchant who settled in Tenerife in the 17th century and was linked to the area's wine-growing activity.

As we continue, the landscape gradually changes, giving way to fayal-brezal woodland and Canary Island pine forest, with sweeping views towards Mount Teide. The return route descends towards Llanito Perera through cultivated land and vineyards, reflecting the long winemaking tradition of Icod de los Vinos.
